Lupenbouey.

To the one I love: My darling wife.

Hello again Sweetheart. Here is that man of yours again. And honey, I'm so very much in love with you. Dear you just mean the world to all to me. Boy dear you had better be prepared for a lot of loving up when I get home, because you are sure going to get it. Oh yes honey I love you so very much. And dear me have been so damn happy together. We have so many happy memories, even though we had a few spots mixed in with them. But it seemed that we always made up pretty fast didn't we. I knew two people as much in love as we are has a few fights once in awhile to make some interesting.

Nothing new today honey. The same old stuff. We are getting a fairly nice rest. 10 hours of sleep last night for me. My cold is leaving me now. But I cough quite a bit during the night. This is the last piece of this old paper I have, so tomorrow I'll have to start looking around for more. I wrote to everyone yesterday including A. Bernice.

Imagine by now honey you have decided on going to Eagle & Pining Spr. Dad is expecting you honey, & by now you should have my address so you should be on your way. I think you should go out there for a week at least & then go back home & stay a short time & then go & see Thelma. I also wrote letters to C. L. the other day & gave him my address.

I'd sure like to know where Bryant & Therest
are. I'm still with me in this outfit.
Honey when you read in the paper or hear over the radio of the 3rd Army, then that's me honey.
I think if Stalin can go O.K. on the Eastern front we can hold down the Western front. I have heard plenty of bad news about my old outfit that was up here. And so I guess it was a damn good thing I went to Benning after all.
And have you heard from Torga lately. He was lucky to be where he was at even though he was hit.

Well darling, I'm at the end of the news again, so I'll just sign off for today. Bye Bye honey & darling always remember that I love you with all my lonely heart & I think & dream of you all the time. Oh yes I got your Dec 30. letter yesterday but I have had later ones. Tell Pop hello & get Mitzi home please.
P.S. Loved loads of kisses
mom

your ever loving husband
Jim
